

So what does all that latin mean...

In so far as we are all agreed this day, the fourth day of june 1568, that for the mutual survivals and to the benefit of all there will be drawn amongst us a Covenant of understanding. That those individuals who are deemed to be not mortal and who wish to reside in the township of Liverpool agree to uphold and abide by on pain of exile or death.

It is agreed that the laws and dictates included with in the Covenant should be a fluid document and able to change to adapt to the needs of those signed. To facilitate this there will be formed a representative Council. The council shall have one representative from the following communities;

The Energy Takers, (vampire)

The Manipulators of forces, (wizards)

the ones that have past beyond, (Ghosts)

The walkers in other shapes (weres)

and the Fair Folk. (Faeries)

They shall be assisted in their deliberations by the Guardian spirit of the city (The Liver Bird) and by the guidance of Justice (Sheriff Ream). It shall be the role of this council to hear any disputes under the Covenant and pass judgement on the defendant if found guilty, or to make such modifications to the text of the agreement if all feel such judgement would be unfair.

It is not intended that the duties and restrictions placed upon the people of the city should be arduous. They should exist to ensure mutual protection from the mortal authorities that might other wise seek to destroy our kind. They should encourage each group to assist the others in so far as they are able., as a recognition that together we have a much better chance of mutual survival than we do apart.

To this we are all agreed.

Then a load of signatures which now goes on for many many pages....
